Modern Battle Tactics

Explained by Canadian Officer Just From France

Capt. Ian Hay Beith, in an Address to the Harvard Club of New York, Tells How Present Conflict in Europe Has Revolutionized All Ideas of War Formerly Held.

HE following address, delivered before the Harvard Club of New York, by Capt. Ian Hay Beith, of the Canadian Overseas Expeditionary Force, serving in France, is reprinted from the June number of the National Service Magazine, published in Garden City, New York.

By Capt. Ian Hay Beith. WANT to talk to you tonight, if you will allow me, on a subject which I will label "Modern Battle Tactics"-and that covers a great deal of ground. But naturally, at a time like this we want to get rather deeper into the matter than we usually go, and in that connection I am reminded of an old friend of mine, a master printer on a small English provincial newspaper, who used to divide all the matter which passed through his hands into two categories, what he called news and what he called tripe. According to him news consisted of things like a battle, a murder, a sui cide a divorce and football, while such matters as literature, art, the drama and leading articles came under the head of "tripe." I have been going around this country a good deal lately handing out to indulgent audienceswhat I think my old friend would have undoubtedly designated as "tripe: that is to say, lectures of the anecdotal type, and I cannot tell you what a pleasure it is to get back for once, in a way, to something of a rather more the war against Germany. Not many years ago, when six miles was supposed to be the battle distance, it was wonderful enough. In those days the great shots were supposed to strike the heavy armor of a battleship almost horizontally, and pierce it. It was the old contest between armor and projectile. But today the problem has changed again. At range of 10 miles, with the muzzle of the gun aised at an angle of 15 degrees, a 14-inch shot weighing 1400 pounds rises a mile in the air to fall with a crashing blow no armor can withstand on a deck or a turret top. One such shot, striking the Invincible, tore off one-half her huge steel turret and flung it into the sea, while the other half crashed on the quarter deck be-

Within a few feet, in a row confronting you-seemingly as big as sequoia trunks—are the shining breeches of the great guns whose business it is to sink the enemy's ship beneath the distant smoke smudge. In battle he is trying to sink you.

But now even the smudge is absent; a canvas target the size of a dradnought, and scarcely discerning to the naked eye, is being towed along the horizon. From the immaculate magazines below by swift electric hoists come these twist of a hand the great breeches are opened, mechanical devices ram the projectile home, the powder charges are thrust in, the breeches closed.

OHN R. RATHOM, editor of the Providence Journal, who was the guest of honor at the convention of the Canadian Press Association in Toronto last week, addressed the association on Thursday night. Mr. Rathom's address revealed for the first time, in detail, the astounding part played by the Providence Journal, since the beginning of the European war, in uncovering German plots against the peace and security of the United States; in fastening upon high officials of the German embassy at Washington direct responsibility for acts of violence carried out in a friendly country, and for a system of espionage and intrigue so amazing as to read more like highly colored fiction than actual fact.

BRAYING AT MR. HOOVER.

From the New York Evening Post, The waspish and litigious Senator from Missouri almost outdid himself yesterday in his attacks upon the food-regulation bill, and especially upon the plan to its administration in the hands of Mr Herbert Hoover. That gentleman became "some Hoover," somebody who had "left this country" to seek his fortune, and who had lived abroad so man; years in touch with autocratic government that he was totally unfitted to understand the ways of free-born Americans, or to have any thing to do with "regulating their affairs. The proposal to make such a man "a King a Czar, a potentate, a Caesar or a Kalser" over us all was an offense to the pure soul of Senator Reed. In fact, we gather that he is rather opposed to the bill and does not love Mr. Hoover.

Senator Reed may not know it, but the place where he really belongs is Kronstadt. In the rules and regulations put forth by the mushroom republic of that island, it was stated that the Government was to have no Ministers, for everybody was to be on perfect equality. It was added that no "outstanding personalities" would be tolerated, inasmuch as they would be "dan gerous to liberty.' It is almost a pity that this governmental theory did not live long enough to be tried out. We venture to affirm that if the Kronstadt republic had been permitted to do any business, some dominant man, or group of men, would have done it. Some one would have had to manage things. He might have done it under the guise of abject humility and complete deferring to the wishes of others. man affairs cannot be directed except by human being. And dread of unusual ability in public business belongs to the childish stage of democracy. Full-grown democracy is demanding greater efficiency in government; and when it gets hold of a remarkably efficient man, it delights to honor him and make use of him. And if at Mr. Hoover they could not obscure the fact of his singular fitness for the work which it is proposed to entrust to him. His years of skilled executive work and especially the fruitful experience which he had as the head of the Commission for Belgian Relief, mark him out as a man who has come to the kingdom for such an hour as this. We ought to be thanking our lucky stars that we can command the services of an American whose peculiar genius for the kind o work he is to un dertake in his own country has had admiring recognition in England and in France in Belgium, yes, and in Germany. Apart from any question of personality, opposition to the administration bill for food-regulation is based on two misconceptions. One is that the great powers conferred are all to be used at once and opference, it seems to be expected, with every process of food production, transportation and sale. But this is largely a horrible imagining. The powers to be granted are largely contingent; they are to be held in reserve; their very existence will, in nine cases out of ten, prevent the necessity of their exercise. Any would-be cornerer of supplies will be deterred by knowlledge of the fact that the law is ready to emisconception of the bill is that it is dethat were the case, there might be more warrant for the posturings and the outcries of Senator Reed about autocratic meddling with our processes of raising and marketing foods. But what he overlooks is that we have to deal with a world prob lem-really a great emergency war meas-ure. It is not alone a question of food for Americans, but of food for the allies and the neutral nations. As far back as the President's war message, the opportunity of the United States to supply food as well me money to the nations at war with Geraspect of the subject Mr. Hoover has re-pentedly dwelt. So has every high author-ity in the matter. Everyhear the matter. Everybody seems to inderstand that American food regulation ital requisite of the allied cause every body, that is, except Senator Reed. To his friend it all comes down to the inalienable right of Missourians to feed their coor logs whatever and as much as they please

THE CLAMP ON GERMANY.

Explaining a decided rise in the Holland rate for German exchange, Amsterdam states that Berlin banks have just transferred 12,000,000 florins in gold, nearly $5,000,000, to one financial institution in that country.

Other Dutch banks have also received German gold. While only a small part of the debts contracted by Germany in purchases made from Holland is said to have been met by these payments n gold, they are sufficient to maintain Berlin redit for the moment and to lift the value of he German mark.

Holland buys large amounts of coal and steel products from Germany. Why is it that in the nterchange of products Germany is now found to we Holland so much more than Holland owes Germany? The reason is an enormous balance of trade in Holland's favor, resulting from more or less contraband dealings to the allies' disadvantage, since the opening of the war. Holland has been selling Berlin large quantities not only of her domestic products but of products she has imported from other countries, chiefly from America.

Figures for different periods of the war, showing the suspicious increase in imports to Holland and other neutral countries adjacent to Germany have been repeatedly printed. Brought up to date they have an especial significance in consequence of our participation in the war.

Holland bought 14,532,000 bushels of wheat of us in 1913, but 31,551,992 bushels in 1915. She try and successful prosecution of the war. bought 401,634 bushels of rye of us in 1913, but 1,668,750 bushels in 1916. She bought 464,414 bushels of barley of us in 1913, but 2,690,426 bushels in 1916.

Her purchases of chemicals from us in 1913, $41,694 worth, were increased to $223,683 worth in 1916. Of brass in bars and sheets she took 6788 pounds in 1913 and 1,950,943 pounds in 1916.

Our exports of many things to Denmark, Norway and Sweden increased in even greater proportion than those to Holland. For instance, we sent but $11,619 worth of chemicals to both Norway and Sweden in 1913, but we sent $745,073 worth in 1916.

Germany has been able to relieve to some extent the economic pressure that is slowly strangling her by surreptitious imports through nearby neutrals. But with the third anniversary of the opening of the war only a month away, she finds her great source of supply, America, closed to her. A power of regulation and of embargo over our exports has been created by Congress. This flies. power will be exercised first in the light of our own needs, second in the light of the needs of our allies and third in the light of neutral needs. What is that Germany to do which has long been wearing her old clothes and now finds them worn out; which is short of food, which is short of all kinds of essential materials, in addition to being a bankrupt in moral assets? With her other scarcities may come soon a scarcity of gold.

In the apportionment of our exports, neutrals come last and Germans nowhere. But neutrals will go down in our books along with Germany if they try to trade with Germany. In that event ed, nor are screens used to keep out flies. they will find Germany's economic pressure extended to themselves. They may even be forced into the war. They would not trade with her even have the gold to buy even if they would trade

THE LOUTH AND GERMANY.

When Gen. Lee's tattered soldiers laid down their arms at Appomattox after a struggle which had brought deathless fame to their arms, they acknowledged victory not so much to the valor of Northern troops as to the invincibility of Northern mills and Northern granaries. The story of their defeat is a classic of military history and an effort to duplicate it, with the Germans playing the role of the South, is the key to entente strategy in the world war.

To discern the truth in great campaigns it is often necessary to disregard official bulletins and the criticisms of military experts. Sometimes it lies hidden in what the lawyers might call an obiter dictum—a casual observation by the way made by persons competent to speak who are not thinking of the matter at issue when they are talking. An illustration of such illuminating comment is afforded by an article in the Neue Zeit of Berlin, as quoted in a translation made for a Boston newspaper. Speaking of the straits of the German textile industry, the Neue Zeit says:

In Hanover two out of three great cotton factories have been shut down, and of 2000 looms in the third only 180 are working 18 hours a week. In Peterswalden eight out of 18 factories are closed. Of 23 mills in the nedorf, Adorf, Lukeredorf and Neukirchen districts only three are working. The great Mittweidner Cotton Spinning Co. has 122,240 spindles of which 104,800 are idle; while in Chemnits on Oct. 27 last year only 37 cent of the workers were employed and this figure is naturally now much less In Hof 450,000 spindles are not working and of 25,-000 in Meerane 20,000 are idle. In Augsberg 6600 textile workers are receiving unemploy ment relief. There is not a single loom in Germany working full time. Yet Germany has a population of more than 63, 000,000 to clothe, to say nothing of the peoples of her affice who look to her mills for fabrical Cloth purpose.

THE PRESIDENT'S APPEAL.

President Wilson's sane and courageous atti tude on the prohibition provision of the foodcontrol bill clarifies the situation and gives assurance that the prohibitionists will abandon the folly of attempting to force nation-wide and destructive prohibition through the food-control bill at a time when all our energies should be unitedly and harmoniously centered upon the winning of the war.

The President appeals in his letter to the Rev. Dr. Cannon, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Anti-Saloon League, to the patriotism of the prohibitionists, asking for the elimination of the beer and wine inhibition on the ground that it delays and threatens with defeat a vital war measure.

To Senators Martin, Gerry and others with whom he has conferred the President is said to have objected to the prohibition clause on the broader ground that it would disorganize industry and cause resentment and disaffection in large elements of the population whose enthusiastic cooperation is necessary to the welfare of the coun-

Mr. Wilson's judicious influence has had beneficial effect. It is inconceivable that his appeal will be ignored. It is inconceivable that the prohibitionists will add to their previous blunder the more serious offense of deliberately setting their issue above the vital interests of the country and treating with contempt the judgment of the man upon whom the chief responsibility for the welfare and safety of the country rests.

The people, we believe, stand overwhelmingly with President Wilson in his demand for imme diate food control legislation and that it be neither delayed nor menaced by other issues.

We expect the majority of Congressmen in both branches o. Congress to see the wisdom of abandoning the prohibition clause and promptly passing the food-control bill. Further delay imperils the people.

DEFECTIVE COUNTRY SANITATION.

It is the opinion of Dr. E. W. Saunders, who has investigated the conditions in Southeast Missouri, that the epidemic of cholera infantum which has been fatal to so many children, was spread by

The probability of this will be evident to anyone who knows how defective are the sanitary arrangements in most country towns, villages farms and schools in Missouri. To every score of flies to be found in St. Louis, there are a hundred of more in the average country town or village. The lack of sewage systems is bad enough, but the disregard for sanitation, in the neglect of those places that are known to breed flies, is characteristic of many of these communities. There are schoolhouses with no sanitary equipment whatever. The drinking water is unprotect-

WHAT WE CAN BAT.

When Europe's war began there was much comment about its educative value, these references being chiefly to the knowledge of geography the people of this country were acquiring. Since it has become our war the educative program has been greatly broadened. Recently we have been learning much of what we can eat.

From De Witt, Ark, comes the information that a baker in that town is making a part of his 400 coal operators, a Chicago dealer was asked bread from half wheat and half rice flour. That the average increase in the price of coal to the is a rice community and, whether from patriotism or taste cannot be said with certainty, the proportion of rice bread to the total output of the bakery is growing. In Wichita, Kan., a miller makes a flour that is a mixture of ground wheat and kaffir corn. This flour is being used by bakers there. In other parts of to, South are cotton seed mills that make a flour that is chiefly from cotton seed and a growing number of home cooks are using this flour.

A few days ago Representative Stephens of Mississippi told the House that cotton should be included in the food bill because, he said, that for each bale of cotton there was 1000 pounds of seed, which produced 22 gallons of oil suitable for household fat and much feed that was unexcelled for the production of meat, or that the seed could be made into other forms of human food. By the time the war ends we may have an entire new menu and still be satisfied.

A SURVEY OF OUR RURAL SCHOOLS.

Gov. Gardner has directed State Superintendent of Public Schools Lampkin to undertake a survey of the rural schools of Missouri. The purpose is to make an official record of those deficiencies which have caused Missouri's rural schools to be classified as the thirty-second in efficiency among the schools of the various states, and the Superintendent is given a year in which to do the

The survey would be valueless, of course, ex as a preliminary to a vigorous effort for raising standards. Whatever the details that evidence inadequacy to the work our schools ought to do, educational efficiency will be found largely a matter of money. Only poorly equipped, incompetent teachers will be available in districts where revenues are insufficient to provide more pay than the average paid to farmhands. Even teachers of fair ability are handicapped in obtaining desired results without proper buildings and the usual educational aids and appliances. Our State subsidy to common schools is absurdly small. The reason all other states of Missouri's rank stand higher in school efficiency is because they provide more generous fund.

Missouri must reconcile itself to the nece of doubling its State school fund. In moving to ward an increase in the appropriation, a survey

MORE FRIGHTFULNESS.

Sir: Your frankness in the matter of what we intend doing to the Germans is admirable. It was, indeed, despicable for us to leave them to discover that we intend using bloodhounds against them, and I heartily applaud that spirit of fairness in which you have informed them that it is also our intention to attack them with snapping turtles and give them some notion of what the gas idea is worth by letting loose upon them the entire product of the Government skunk farm. There should be nothing concealed. They will quit the quicker for knowing the whole range of our devilish ingenuity. May I say that on my place in Arkansas I am and have been for some time training woodpeckers for the Government. Five thousand of these will be shipped to France this month. They are the large pilleated woodpecker or "Good-God" of the Ozark region, and can peck a man's eyes out in a jiffy. We make them flerce by feeding them popcorn which is popped open by the heat of their bodies after they have swallowed it and makes them wild. I may say that it is the intention of the army to drop them in paper sacks on the German trenches. The sack will carry just enough sand to break it when it strikes the ground, and the woodpeckers will do the rest.

Vinegar is used primarily to keep down the growth of injurious bacteria until the lactic acid ferment starts, but it also adds to the flavor. Add sufficient brine to cover the material and allow to stand 24 hours. Then make air-tight. The time necessary for complete fermentation to occur depends upon the tamperatura. In a warm place only five days to a week may be necessary; in a coel cellar three to four weeks. The string should be removed from string beans before they are put up. Beets require careful washing to remove all dirt before brining. If it is desired, when finally the beets or string beans are to be eaten, to wash out the brine and serve them as fresh vegetables, the addition of spice when they are put up is not necessary. There always will be more or less bubbling and foaming of brine during first stages of fermentation. After this ceases a thin film will appear, which will spread rapidly over the whole surface and develop quickly into a heavy growth of yeast-like organisms which feed upon the acid formed by fermentation. If allowed to grow undisturbed it will eventually destroy all the acid and the fermented material will spoil. To prevent this seum from forming it is disturbed it will eventually destroy all the acid and the fermented material will spoil. To prevent this scum from forming it is necessary to exclude the air from the surface of the brine. This should be done by either of two methods, 24 hours after the vegetables have been packed. Perhaps the hest method is to cover the surface—over the board and around the weight—with very hot, melted parafin. If the parafin is sufficiently hot to make the brine hoil when poured upon it, the parafin will form a smooth even layer before hardening. Upon solidifying, it effects an air tight seal. Oils, such as cottonseed oil or the tasteless liquid petroleum, may also be used for this purpose. As a measure of safety with crocks, it is advisable to cover the top with a cloth soaked in melted parafin. Put the cover in place before the parafin hardens.

He paused for an instant, then rushed forward, seized Constance by the wrist, dragged her from the chair and whirled her across the room.
"Sit down," he ordered, pointing to the little of-chair that stood at the typewriter desk. She obeyed, trembling. "Stick in a sheet of paper."

Mechanically she followed his instructions.

Constance sat back and stared at him. As she did so, the wild look faded from his eyes, and he smiled at her. "Now, Connie." he said, seating himself on the desk and looking down at her. "I'm sorry if I scared you, but it had to be done. I'm not crasy:

I've just become sane. I've chopped six years of efficiency out of my life and I'm beginning all She was simultaneously relieved and alarmed. "Last night," said H: Hedge, "you turned the lights out on me. I don't blame you. I was still an efficiency engineer. I'm just plain Henry now, and as such I'm entitled to a hearing. I love you."

Constance watched him curiously. He was utterly unlike the efficiency man. Somehow, his dark eyes had changed. They were ardent. They carried an appeal that even his voice lacked.
"Yes, Connie, I love you. Of course I had to.

An artistic voice is re-created by processes that are practiced only by the Edison laboratories. The voice re-creation is placed on the New Edison. The artist stands beside the instrument and sings; suddenly and without warning, the artist ceases singing and the New Edison takes up the song alone.

Mark this well! The re-creation of the artist's voice must be so perfect that those who listen with eyes closed, cannot tell when the artist has ceased to sing. Such is the test imposed by Mr. Edison.

Dr. Albert's Portfolio.

Another incident, the loss of a port-folio belonging to Dr. Heinrich Albert an Austrian official, which contained papers relating to Ambassador Dumba's efforts to incite labor troubles in the United States, created quite a stir among the diplomats. Mr. Rathom told of how a Journal reporter got the pa-

"One of the Journal reporters had beer shadowing Dr. Albert in New York but for months nothing seemed wrong One day he went into a leather goods store, where he ordered a portfolio and gave the salesman instruction to put his initials on it. The reporter, as soon as Albert had gone out, walked up to the salesman and ordered another portfolio of the same kind, but with no initials, saying he would rather first see how the other gentleman's initials looked. When he came back and saw the initials he said he didn't like them and departed to go to another shop and have the same initials put on his portfolio. His work was becoming less tire-

ARABELLA HELPS.

ISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN is out for conservation, For not a girl in all the town would rather aid the nation. A dozen eggs to make a cake she wouldn't think of taking with eleven she can make a sample of her baking That any King might love to eat, if not too busy fighting, A truly rare and toothsome treat, delicious and inviting. Not quite so rich as she would like, but still it's appetizing, For while our boys are on the hike she's most economizing. At such restrictions grim and hard you'll never hear her mutter; She's very saving of the lard and cooks the steak in butter, For every one must do her share to help the battling nation And you will find that she is there with war time conservation. Three spoons of sugar in her tea and four upon her berries Although she'll need, as you may see, a trifle more on cherries; 'Tis thus that she denies herself, her appetite restraining, That still upon the pantry shelf there'll be some food remaining. Economy is all her cry from Tuesday until Monday And she has saved enough to buy a lovely chocolate sundae, For not a girl in all the town would rather aid the nation, And so Miss Brown has buckled down to rigid conservation.

Hope for the Assessment.

F the new Tax Commission in Missouri doesn't increase the assessment, it will hardly be worth what it cost the fishermen and hunters of the State to have that act pass. Frank Farris claimed as his reward for supporting that and other administration bills the right to name the Game and Fish Commissioner, who is to be one Timotheus Birmingham of St. James. Everybody who knows Timotheus says he will make about the kind of a Game and Fish Commissioner there was out here when Missouri belonged to the Indians. There is indignation about this, for sport is a precious thing to thousands of people in the State. They want it preserved. The Governor can only say he is sorry. It is a little thing. Is it a little thing, though? Maybe it is going to be more important in the end whether the outdoor life of Missouri was poetected and nurtured for generations to come than it is going to be whether the banks ever got back the money the Governor borrowed. The proper kind of a Game and Fish Comn er could make money for the State, as it is done continually in some of the states; but that isn't the kind we are going to have. We are going to have the other kind.

detail, we come first of all to the I myself have specialized, and I shall have to be cautious or I shall go on for a couple of hours on that topic But to keep things down to the minimum, the importance of the machine gun cannot be overestimated. I know the Germans, I am bound to say, fully appreciated the value of the machine gun when they were making ready for war. When the war broke out they possessed something like. 50,bitter experience we have expanded that have roughly a machine gun for every plete what the bombs began, and so 80 men now fighting.

Machine Gun Equals 100 Men. The characteristics of the machin gun boiled down come to this: The nachine gun fires rifle bullets at the rate of about 500 bullets per minute u to a range of over nearly 3000 yards. Although the effective range, and the usual range is very much shorter, they can be fired up to that range. And so, with this weapon we get an enor nously high firing power combine with an extremely low man power which, of course, is ideal and which w lways aim at in modern warfare. A machine gun properly handled is onsidered equal to 100 men with rifles ow, it is obvious that you can fine over for one machine gun handled by wo men-it only requires two men t andle it-it is obvious that you can find cover for that single gun very such more easily than you could for 100 men with rifles. You may say that you are putting all your eggs in one basket if you trust to the machine run. That is true, but it is very dif-icult to locate that basket, and it is a omparatively simple matter, if the gui located and knocked out by artillery, to replace it, and, moreover, this one nachine gun, handled by a trained gun erate average instead of a high state o Again, we have to make a very care al distinction, and no doubt it will be orne in on you when you come t grip with the subject, a very careful distinction between the machine gun roper and what we call the automatic In our own service we have two types of gun. We have the Vickers nachine gun, which is a machine gun proper, and we have the Lewis gun hich, as you know, was invented by ol. Lewis of the American army.

Difference in Machine Guns. The Vickers gun, or, if you will, the ypical machine gun, possesses two nost invaluable characteristics. First of all it possesses a fixed mounting, which means that it can be laid and clamped along a certain line on a given ine, and fired with equal accuracy by day or by night by simply pressing emy might try to cross. By simply ressing a button on the gun you can sweep the bridge, whether it is light jacket, which enables it to be fired coninvously without any fear of overheating; but the Vickers gun weighs 45 pounds and the tripod on which it stands weighs 48 pounds—and, believe me, that is some weight, especially when you prance across unbroken ground; and it is quite impossible to carry a gun of that weight into action without taking a very severe chance of being spotted as you go. Now, the Lewis gun, or, if you like, the automatic rifle, possesses no water the automatic rifle, possesses no water that automatic rifle, possesses no water that the automatic rifle, possesses no water that the skin. Those who will make it a many to gently massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the face. fire it in the dark and must have a target by which to aim it. You cannot fire by map or compass, but the Lewis peach-like complexion.-ADV. gun only weighs 26 pounds. It can be carried wherever infantry can go, and t can go as fast as infantry can go; and as it can be carried on the shoulde at a slope like a rifle, it is very difficult for an enemy to locate it, if taken nto action. Last summer when I was at home at the machine gun training school, whenever we had officers sent down o be instructed in the use of these guns, we used to give them a demonstration by having perhaps fifteen or twenty men advance in line, in open order, towards us carrying rifiles at the slope and one or two of those men, instead of carrying a rifle, carried a Lewis gun, and we used to ex-ercise the officers for whom the demonstration was given, in trying to spot which of those men was carrying the Lewis gun and which carry ing a rifle, and it was extraordinarily difficult for them to locate it. You can imagine the value of that when troops are out to attack, if they can get even one Lewis gun-equal to 100 ifles-up into the firing line ready to give that enormous concentrated rifle pport so badly needed.

The Lewis gun, provided it is kep ecently cleaned, free from grit, practically never sets up stoppage at all As regards the distribution of the duties of these two guns, the machine gun proper, that is to say, the Vickers gun, is usually put under the head of the Brigadier-General in command of the brigade, in a machine tun company consisting of sixteer nachine guns under the command of an officer, who has eight officers under him, one officer to every pair of guns which enables them to be spill

The Lewis gun, or automatic rifle, purely a regimental weapon. We ave so many Lewis guns now allotted to every battalion. They are un-der the command of an officer under the Battalion Commander. They go everywhere the infantry go, and, as I say, it forms an enormous auxiliary value, especially in the recent opera-for the machine gun. The Deadly Hand Bomb. Now we come to the bomb or hand Now, these bombs or hand grenades are absolutely indispensable in trench fighting. As you know, a trench as a rule isn't straight. It is cut up at intervals by great square the effect of a shell bursting, and it is impossible to get around in these traverses in a narrow trench with a rifle and bayonet, and the pro-000 machine guns. In the British army, cedure, as a rule, is this. A party we had two machine guns per infantry move up a trench in single file, throw battalion, making about 300 machine two or three bombs from the first guns altogether. Under the force of traverse into the next open traverse. The moment an explosion has taker place, three or four men go to com-

The whole thing was topped off by a fuse which you lit with a match or cigarette. There were two drawbacks to this device. The first one was, i it happened to be raining—and i usually is raining, when a bat-tle is going on—the bombs would not

There Are 29 Articles of Clothing for U. S. Men and 90 on the Equipage List.

WASHINGTON, June 30 .- Supplies for a million men-a year's needs of everything from beef to shoestrings. and from cots to candy-is a measure of the task which Quartermaster-General Shapre's office has in providing for America's new armies.

All told, 343 different items of supplies appear in the Quartermaster-General's list of rations for issue and sale of clothing and of equipage. The figures given here are on the basis of supplying soldiers located in the United States, so give no help in computing additional needs of this country resulting from military participation in the war.

Regular rations of Uncle Sam's soldiers call for a list of 49 items. In it are more than 29,600,000 pounds of coffee, four kinds of tea, and over 25,000 tons of granulated sugar; over 866,000 gallons of cucumber pickles; over 3,800,000 cans of black pepper and cinnamon, cloves, ginger and nut-meg, totaling 372,000 cans; over 480,-700,000 pounds of potatoes; over 55,-200,000 pounds of onions; over 300,-000 000 nounds of flour bisides hard bread; nearly 1,000,000 gallons of cane syrup; lemon and vanilla flavoring extracts; over 8,200,000 pounds of lard, and over 7,300,000 pounds of butter; canned and dried fish, canned vegetables, evaporated apples and

HEARING ON BILL REGULATING SMOKE

Aldermanic Committee to Receive Objections to Measure as Amended.

The Committee on Legislation o he Board of Aldermen will hold a special hearing tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock on the smoke regulation bill. The Bearing was granted at the request the Mayor's Committee on Smoke Plimination, the Civic League, the Women's Committee on Smoke Abatement and the Engineers (397,638,240 pounds) is one item, and Club. The ordinance, as amended, provides that smoke may be emitted from locomotives and smokestacks, and canned roast beef, totaling nearly for 15 minutes in every hour, instead of six minutes, as heretofore

This provision, it is declared, would practically make all smoke regulations useless if the emission of smoke for 15 minutes in every hour under the law would make a volume of smoke that would cloud the whole city. There are also declared to be provisions in the bill which act as a detriment to trained engineers.

Those who are strongly opopsed to the bill as it now stands contend that smoke abatement can come best through education and efforts based on education, but that it would be a great mistake to allow the law to become so lax in its provisions as is contemplated. Chairman Wyrick has stated that his committee will be glad to hear the objections to the mended bill.

Regular articles of clothing are 29 in number. These are figured on initial requirements and upkeep for the first nine months. Here are a few of the items: Belts, 2,000,000 coats, cotton, 2,400,000; coats, woolen Estimating quantities needed 1 only a step in the task of supplying an army. Things must be boughtquality tested, contracts made, prices determined, delivery-and then comthe problems of transportation, stor age and distribution.

This shows a part of the country's of canned fruits, vegetables, fish and of people are daily working "to make meats, pickles, maple sirup, ginger the world safe for democracy."

A General's Description.

When he got to the front line, he encountered a private soldier with no gas helmet, and the General who was very anxious to see that this sort of thing did not occur again, turned and sent for the man's Sergeant and the officers re sponsible. When they were gathered around he told them what he thought of them for allowing this man to go without his gas helmet, and then, with magnificent gesture, he said, "Take my helmet. But to be quite sure you know how to adjust this helmet, let me see you put it on." And the man, with trembling fingers opened the satchel and pulled out a very dirty pair of socks.

(Laughter.) However, gentlemen, I fear this is digression; but that is one of the rea-Owing to the precautions taken against it, it is more annoying now than dangerous. To attack your enemy by gas means that you may have to wait for days in order to get the wind just right. The only kind of a wind straight behind you blowing three of four miles an hour. As you can imagine, it is extremely bad for the morale of troops who have been screwed up for taking week waiting for the wind to change. As for flame projectors, I have never actually seen them in operation. They are rather limited in scope. Worked by two men, one carries the reservoi. and generator and the other a sort of hose-pipe arrangement with which he squirts flame at his opponent. I understand these flame projectors have not got a range of more than 25 or 30 yards, so if you happen to be 31 yards away with a bomb in your hands you have the flame projecting outfit stopped every time. But I think quite apart from everything else as regards the question of gas and flame projectors, I think they have got to be abolished once and for all when this war is over.

(Applause.) Some Defensive Armor.

Just a word on this question of de-fensive armor. We have the steel helmet, introduced a year or so ago. They are a yery simple affair, but they are a step in the right direction. They stop shell splinters, shrapnel bullets and turn aside rifle bullets so long as they are not at close range. They were very unpopular when adopted. They were heavy and unbecoming, and the men were extremely reluctant and refused to use them. They would hang them at their belt; wash in them-in fact, put them to any domestic purpose whatever, but they would not wear them. I always remember one day I met one of my men being carried down from the trench on a stretcher with a bad wound in the head, and I asked him how he got it, and he said, "All along of them new helmets." I asked for details and it appeared that this man had been hit on the head by the hose of a shell with the result that his steel helmet had been driven into his head and inflicted : rather nasty scalp wound, and although I pointed out to him that if it hand't been for his helmet he wouldn't have had a head at all, he persisted in blaming the helmet for the whole thing. (Laughter.)

But of course the great defensive ar mor in this war has been the tank. Last year at the battle of the Somme our chief objective was a ridge of ground with a chain of almost impregnable forts, and although we fought up and up that hill-every time the final assault was launched the men went up-still the German machine gun men came up from their dugouts and mowed down our men. And then at last, up the hill one September morning, came this monster impervious to shrapnel bullets and even light field shells. They got to the top of the hill, got astraddle the German tranches, or sea down on machine gun emplacements, with the result that the place was captured.

By the way, there are extremely good moving pictures of the tanks in action, officially taken, and as soon as released I hope you take the chance to go and see them if you can, because they are really wonderful pictures. They give you an extraordinarily good idea of what a tank can do. Roughly speaking they are about the length of an ordinary Puilcan car; from a side view they are diamond shaped, and they move along on mond shaped, and they move along on tractors, two parallel tractors, which, as it were, lay down two parallel roads and pick them up behind, and down in front again. They so through sheil

The Kind of Days That Prove

a White Mountain Refrigerator

When the mercury goes over ninety — when the ice in that old chest runs away. That is when a White Mountain Refrigerator proves its mettle. The patented duplex circulation system keeps all parts of the chest cold—the double insulation keeps the heat where it belongs; on the outside of the chest. You wonder how it keeps so cold with so little ice. It will be true economy to replace that

brough the whole of the transport re uired for the division already up and has to bring its own transport up behind it, and you can imagine the end mous amount of preparation required However, the point of view of an offi-cer in command of a company or battalion is probably more interesting to s, and here are a few of the points which will occupy an officer's attention In the first place, he has got to get acight over. For that purpose he will be given an aeroplane map or a very laborate trench map, on which every tree and wood is shown. He has got to get that in his head so as to know ex ctly where he is. He has got to start n and study the general operation of ers especially as regards himself.

Supposing he is a battalion Lewis gun officer, or bombing officer. He picks out from those orders, a great mass of hem, every paragraph that concerns himself, then he writes his own orders ind sees to it that his men know them horoughly-and, of course, this ques ion of written orders is particularly important, as a safeguard to himself, cause in the event of anything going wrong, all he has to produce is the dulicate of his own orders, and if his orders were properly written he is ab solved from all blame. And an officer would probably be employed in all sorts of preliminary work before the fight.

Attacks Usually Made at Dawn. As to the actual attack itself, it usually takes place at dawn, while the guns, which have perhaps been thundering for weeks, suddenly, at a given moment, stop for but a few minutes while they djust their sights and fuses with a view o lifting on to the second line which have described, and then the infantry go

You are now on to the fire of the enemy's machine guns, and there is aly one question which interests vo ment, and that is this: Has the enemy's barb wire been cut for you or has it not? Because if it hasn't, there will be trouble. As regards the placing of these machine guns to cover the barb wire, the old theory was—this is an important point—the old theory was that you took your machine gun and you played it like a hose upon the advancing enemy. Well, that was a Nowadays, guns are placed in such a position so as to sweep certain amount of ground as com-pletely as possible, if possible along your own wire where the enemy ar bout to congregate. The guns are rlaced in such a way, that if all are fired at once, they form a lattice work of fire in front of the wire, and the enemy must walk through tha

The French have extended this system very cleverly. They now run cut tactical wire opposite to the de-fensive wire. Machine guns are laced in position obliquely, a few strands of barb wire running out as a continuation of the line of the gun. the result is when the enemy attacks he hesitates at this wire, with the result that he is very nearly strung out on the wire along the line of the

However, we will assume the wir cut in your case. You now find the enemy's front line tiench. While in most cases there is et much trench left, and if there are men in it there are not many, so qu push on up to the communicaon trenches. These communication renches are known to you because ou have studied the whole ground from aeroplane maps. You push on ith bombing parties and also gun: driving the enemy to the communive not gotten alrea After You Take the Trench.

Meanwhile behind you engineer nd pioneers are hurrying across bringing material to help you reverse the consolidated trench. You have not to remember the parapet is on the wrong side. Sand bags, barb wire, etc. The machine gunners are durrying up to consolidate the positon, that is to say, placing their guns in such a position to sweep the round in front of the newly captured ground in the event of a attractive enough to be suitable for any outing ming up unrolling wire as they posts; ammunition, sand bags, water, food, etc., are all being brought up by specially detailed parties; also parties with more bombs, more ammunition, to certain prearranged dumps in the new line where every officer knows their position and can send back for fresh supplies, and finally the com manding officers come up and ad verce headquarters is established. and your new line, your first obentive, is consolidated. Pienie Lunch Sets, each.....

In due course, probably there will be an intensive bombardment from the enemy, who, of course knows ev-ery yard of trenches. But that may get forward to their second and third ne before the counter attack. The Germans are extraordinarily capable developing these counter attacks Collapsible Paper Drinking Cups..................5c with great proficiency. At the battle Neuce Chapelle and the battle of Leos-in those days we hadn't go artillery we have now to support -although we advanced a con scarable distance on both laterals, lost a certain amount of ground both cases through counter at-

So the fighting goes on until nightcalties have been very slight indeed most cases they have been only to heavy—a relief comes up, fresh twens come up and take over the newly captured positions from the men who have captured them, and they, or what is left of them, hand over their conquests, and go back their well-earned rest, with the com fretable consciousness that they have done the State some service.

Closing the North Sea With Curtain of Bombs

A cross section of the North Sea showing proposed 250-mile bomb curtain from Scotland to Norway with chain of surface mines between it and the German coast.

EVERAL weeks ago in a discussion of the submarine menace, J. Bernard Walker, editor of the Scientific American, suggested that a net 150 feet deep be strung across the upper end of the North Sea from Scotland to Norway, a distance of 250 miles. The English Channel already being protected in such a fashion, the carrying out of Mr. Walker's plan would mean the transforming of the "German Ocean" into an inland sea with no egress for more effective result can be obtained by sealing the contact against its sides.

At the time Mr. Walker pointed out that the proposed barrier could be constructed at the cost of $20,000,000about the price of a few loaded liners. Mr. Walker's compilation of the depths of the North Sea at the point of the barrier, running east, was as follows: 360 feet.

We may institute a continuous line of surface mines of coast blockade by building continuous nets across the the largest size, connected by cable entrances to Zeebrugge, Wilhelmshaven, the Elbe and and so adjusted that there would be the Baltic, or we may surrender the North Sea entirely to two miles of this cable to a mile of the German submarines and shut them within it by a linear distance, the cable being anwall of obstruction across the English Channel at Dover chored at considerable intervals to and across the North Sea from Scotland to Norway.

Be that as it may, we are strongly of the opinion that the most effective barrier would be a combination of the net and the mine, in which the net performs the function of a carrier to sustain a continuous wall of mines, so spaced that any submarine which touched the curtain would be broached and opened to the sea in one or more

We have worked out in the accompanying drawings a system which is not only comparatively cheap to construct but (what is more important in this emergency) one which could be very rapidly put through. Considered as a feat of engineering and seamanship, it would be perfectly feasible to build and maintain a bomb curtain to a depth of 200 feet throughout the whole stretch of water between Scotland and Norway-a distance of about 250 miles.

Since the province of this net is to act merely as a carrier for a vertical mine field, it could be built of commercial one-half-inch steel rod. The mesh would be 10 feet and the connection at the alternate intersections would consist of a buoyant spherical bomb, containing 20 pounds of trinitrotoluol. The bombs would be built in two hemispherical halves, with holes formed in the flanges for the attachment of the lengths of wire rods. The ends of the rods would be attached to the bomb by merely threading them through the flanged holes and twisting three or four turns of the rod snugly upon itself. Since the bombs would be spaced 20 feet apart and stag-basic element in this patrol would consist of half a dozen mother ships moored in line from coast to coast at intervals of from forty to fifty miles. These would form the supply depots from which the surface craft and aircraft would operate. The mother ships would consist of old tramp steamers which would be anchored securely by the head, heavy anchors and cables of great length being used, so that the ships would ride easily in the heaviest weather. For protection against torpedo attack, each ship would be surrounded by a double line of extra heavy torpedo netting, maintained in place by unusually heavy booms and guy ropes. At the stern of each ship, sections of the net would be arranged so that they could be lowered to admit the destroyers and motor boats when they came alongside for repairs and 480, 510, 462, 372, 600, 942 and 1020. the flotillas of motor boats; the intermediate zone, from twenty-five to thirty miles in width would be covered by the destroyers, and the outer zone, reaching 100 miles or more into the North Sea, would be under the watchful eye at all times of the aeroplanes.

The advantages of such a bomb curtain over a steel-wire net of sufficient strength to stop a 200-ton

1. That because of its simple construction and the speed with which the wire rods could be turned out at the mills it could be built in far less time.

2. That whatever the size and speed of the submarine or the character of its net-cutting devices, contact with the bomb curtain would mean certain destruction, or at least disablement.

In this matter of defeating the submarine, time is of the very essence of the contract, and although a

This may be true; though we doubt it. Anyone who has tried to cut a piece of plow-steel wire knows that it requires a sharp chisel, an unyielding anvil and no little muscular strength to do the trick, and we very much doubt if any revolving knife or razor-like edge would cut through the the edge would cut through the heavy net.

The bomb would be mentioned string of floating mines. a thoroughly orbuil, rendering it unmanageable. The bomb would be motor boat. The function of this patrol would be not only to detect, and as far as possible, prevent the aport of quantity production, the bombs could be produced or submarines to the net, but also to maintain the complete with contact points and firing mechanism for about $35 apiece, which would represent a total cost for materials of the whole net of about $45,000,000. Adding the cost of materials of the whole net of about $50,a total cost for materials of the whole net of about $50,-000,000, which is less than the total value of ships and cargo sunk by the submarines in a single week of the present campaign.

The firing mecnanism of the bombs would have to be of special design, to prevent the whole net from being set off by sympathetic shock when one of the bombs was detonated. We understand that a firing mechanism can be produced which will resist the sudden shock from a nearby explosion, and can be operated only by a blow or push of comparatively low velocity, such as would be applied if the firing pin were struck by a submarine moving at a rate of eight or ten knots. To render the hombs safe for handling by the seamen as they build them into the net, the firing pin would be locked by a cement which would be soluble in water, thereby insuring that the bombs would become alive only after they had been in water for ten or fifteen minutes.

If the approaches to the North Sea were protected by successive lines of aeroplanes, scouts, destroyers and patrol boats, and finally by an impassable wall of bombs, it is safe to say that the Atlantic routes would be rid, once and for all, of the submarine pest, and America would be free to send over food, munitions and troops without fear of molestation.

A similar net at Gibraltar and at the Straits of Otranto (the mouth of the Adriatic) would effectively block the submarine bases of Germany's allies.

Enthusiastic accounts of the Passion Play, written in 1840 by Guido Gorres, Baron de Roisin and Ludwig Steub were perhaps Oberammergau's first introduction to the world at large. It was still more widely heralded by Edward Devrient's description in 1850, when Tobias Flunger's Christus so entirely fulfilled Devrient's ideal of the sacred character. Dean Stanley saw the play in 1860 and also wrote an appreciative account of it.

The inviolable rule in Oberammergau in choosing a cast for the Passion Play was to select only Christian characters of highest spiritual attainment. So earnestly devout are these people that they would consider it sacrilegious for any but the most pious to participate in the

HE first of the articles in this series was printed in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine last week. It told how Alexander McClintock, a native of Lexington, Ky., enlisted in a Canadian regiment. The fact that he had attended a military school in the States led to his immediate promotion to a sergeantcy. In simple language McClintock told of his experiences in the Canadian mobilization camp, his intensive work in England and his arrival

During the day we had only a very few men in the trench. If an attack is coming in daylight, there's always plenty of time to get ready for it. At night, we kept prepared for trouble all the time. We had a night sentry on each firing step and a man sitting at his feet to watch him to see he wasn't secretly sniped. Then we had a sentry in each "bay" of the trench to take messages.

Orders didn't permit the man on the firing step or the man watching him to leave post on any excuse whatever, during their two-hour "spell" of duty. Hanging on a string, at the elbow of each sentry on the fire step was a siren whistle or an empty shell case and a bit of iron with which to hammer on 1t. This-which ever it might be-was for the purpose of spreading the alarm in case of a gas attack. Also, we had sentries in "listening posts," at various points from 20 to 50 yards out in 'No Man's Land." These men blackened their faces before they went "over the top," and then lay in shell holes or natural hollows. There were always two of them, a bayonet man and a bomber. From the listening post a wire ran back to the fire trench, to be used in signaling. In the trench a man sat with this wire wrapped around his hand. One pull meant "All O K," two pulls, "I'm coming in;" three pulls, "Enemy in sight," and four pulls, "Sound gas alarm." It shook us up and scared us so that some of our party were now worse off than the man who had been hit and carried to the rear. We finally got together and went on. When we were about a mile behind the reserve trench, stumbling in the dark through the last and most dangerous path overland, we heard a lone siren whistle, followed by a wave of metallic hammering and wild tooting which seemed to spread over all of Belgium a mile ahead of us. all any of us could say was:

All you could see in the dark was a collection of white and frightened faces. Every trembling finger seemed awkward as a thumb as we got out our gas masks and helmets and put them on, following directions as nearly as we could. I ordered the men to sit still and sent two forward to notify me from headquarters when the gas alarm was over. They lost their way and were not found for two days. We sat there for an hour, and then I ventured to take my mask off. As nothing happened, I ordered the men to do the same. When we got into the trenches with our packs we found that the gas alarm had been one of Fritz's jokes. The first sirens had been sounded in the German lines, and there hadn't been any gas.

Our men evened things up with the Germans, however, the next night. Some of our scouts crawled clear up to the

Rediscovered at 80—Man Who Painted America's Most Popular Picture

Alexander M. Willard, Who Produced "The Spirit of '76" More Than 40 Years Ago, Resides in Cleveland -Painted Patriotic Masterpiece for Philadelphia Centennial With Father as Central Figure.

HE dramatic, heroic picture here reproduced, typifying the Revolutionary "Spirit of '76," is undoubtedly the most popular and the most numerously reproduced work of an American artist, with the possible exception of Stuart's portrait of Washington, yet the artist's name is all but forgotten. Archibald M. Willard, who painted this now world-famous picture 42 years ago for the Philadelphia Centennial E2position of 1876, is still living, hale and hearty in his 80th year, in Cleveland, Ohio, where the painting first was exhibited in the art store window of James F. Ryder. The following account of the career of A. M. Willard and the genesis of his most celebrated work is prepared for the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine by the artist's former fellow-townsman, James H. Kennedy, who as a young reporter on the Cleveland Plain Dealer wrote the first description of the original "Spirit of '76," immediately upon its

By JAMES H. KENNEDY.

HE SPIRIT OF SEVENTY-SIX" was painted by Archibald M. Willard in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1875, and was first officially put on general public exhibition in the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia in 1876. Mr. Willard was then a comparatively young man, of very restricted artistic reputation, whose early training school had been the paint department of a wagon factory at Wellington, Ohio. He is today in his 80th year, still vigorous and alert, mentally and physically-a man of commanding appearance, even though at first sight he may not seem to measure up to his full stature of 6 feet 3 inches. He has not yet laid down his palette and brushes, but works as occasion offers or the spirit moves, in his home studio on Holyoke avenue in Cleveland. This house was built by Mr. Willard some 40 years ago, in what at that time was a choice residential suburb of Cleveland. Today it is entirely surrounded by a thickly settled population of Polish and Russian Jews. The artist has been repeatedly urged to transplant his atelier to a more desirable section of the city, but with affections rooted there in the associations of half a lifetime, he cannot persuade himself to spend his remaining days in any new environment. Willard's ancestors were of American Revolutionary stock, and his masterpiece proves once again that blood will tell. The center figure in his great picture, the old drummer with white hair and eagle eyes, is a life-portrait of the artist's father, the Rev. Daniel Willard, who was born in 1801, and who as a lad knew many veterand soldiers of the Revolution, so that he could pass on firsthand to his son their stirring traditions and reminiscences. The elder Willard settled in Ohio in his early manhood and at the time when he posed for this picture was a resident of Wellington, in that State.

Archibald Willard as a youth showed marked artistic predilection, but had no regular art education until he grew up and obtained it for himself. He enlisted as a Union soldier in the Civil War and his first sketches were of camp life. He has still in his possession a number of these, made when the army was in Cumberland "They seemed to help the folks at home to understand the conditions of army life," he says. Several of his pictorial records of Morgan's raids were published in Harper's contemporaneously.

At the close of the war Willard located at Wellington, O., where he was employed in painting carriages and wagons, and gained the reputation of contributing a very important advertising feature to the product. He gave the salesman "a good talking point," as his employer phrased it. It was at this period that Willard made his first hit with one of those humorous or "genre" pictures that have circulated widely in chromo reproduction. It rep-

But the inherited patriotism and the innate artistic sense of Willard soon awakened him to the fact there was something more in the "Yankee Doodle" motif than humor and burlesque. He discarded the preliminary studies he had made and plunged into the subject with real patriotic enthusiasm. After several months intensive work, the great life-size picture as we now know it stood revealed upon the canvas. It was shown in the centennial art exhibit under the original title, "Yankee Doodle," but this was soon changed to the more comprehensive and fitting "Spirit of '76."

The model for the old drummer in the center, as we have seen, was Willard's father. The fifer was Hugh Mosier, a musician of local fame in a little town west of Cleveland, and who had done valiant service in the Civil War. The drummer boy at the right was Harry Devereaux, who is now a leading business man of Cleveland. He was a schoolboy in 1875, the son of Gen. J. H. Devereaux, who bought the picture after its tour of the country, and presented it to Abbott Hall in his birthtown of Marblehead, Mass., where it now hangs. Quite recently Mr. Willard has painted a full-sized copy of this picture, Ryder became Willard's publisher and business part- on commission from Newton D. Baker, now Secretary of Several other pictures popular in the "chromo" days working on this idea, and induced his aged father to youth promptly answering the call of duty in latter-day war time, and old age eager to go along, too. Another is "The Battle of San Juan Hill," showing a group of Civil War veterans discussing the news from Cuba in 1898, in an old soldiers' home at Sandusky, O. "Jim Bludso," dealing with the hero of John Hay's famous Mississippi River ballad of that name, was purchased by Amasa Stone of Cleveland and presented to Col. Hay, his son-in-law. Purely humorous is "Deacon Jones' Experience," for which Bret Harte was paid $200 to write an accompanying piece of verse. Older readers will recall the picture of family prayer in a homely kitchen interior, where the dog and cat are having an untimely dispute, and pussy has taken refuge on the Deacon's back, while the two youngsters who have instigated the affair regard its climax with a wild glee they cannot

AN INTERNATIONAL DECLA

Flag Wilson's Day Address Which

HE address of President Wilson in Washington on Flag Day-June 14 last—undoubtedly is one of the greatest historical documents produced during the present war. In it the Executive not only made clear the high motives which compelled the United States to enter the colossal conflict, but also sounded the pure clear note of a future day when the spirit of freedom will find a footing wherever it alights on the mundane sphere.

IT HAS BEEN SUGGESTED THAT THIS INTERNATIONAL DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE BE READ AT ALL PUBLIC GATHERINGS AND IN EVERY AMERICAN HOME ON THE FOURTH OF JULY, NEXT WEDNESDAY.

The address is a remarkable piece of literature as well as a document of international import. It is constructed in terse, colorful, impressive English that reminds one of Lincoln.

The determination of America to fight with every iota of its strength to remove the peril of German autocracy and international serfdom is made plain in no uncertain terms. There is an iron message for Potsdam and Wilhelmstrasse that is as pregnant of meaning as the handwriting on the walls of the doomed palace of Belshazzar.

"Woe to the man or group of men," said the President in conclusion, "that seeks to stand in our way in this day of high resolution, when every principle we hold dearest is to be vindicated and made secure for the salvation of the nations. We are ready to plead at the bar of history and our flag shall wear a new luster. Once more we shall make good with our lives and fortunes the great faith to which we were born and a new glory shall shine in the face of qur people."

sedition amongst us and sought to draw our own citizens from their allegiance—and some of these agents were men connected with the official embassy of the German Government itself, here in our own capital They sought by violence to destroy our industries and arrest our commerce. They tried to incite Mexico to take up arms against us and to draw Japan into a hostile alliance with her-and that not by indirection, but by direct suggestion from the Foreign Office in Berlin. They impudently denied us the use of the high seas and repeatedly executed their threat that they would send to their death any of our people who ventured to approach the coasts of Europe.

The Sinister Enemy

A ND many of our own people were corrupted. Men began to look upon their own neighbors with suspicion and to wonder in their hot resentment and surprise whether there was any community in which hostile intrigue did not lurk. What great nation in such circumstances would not have taken up arms? Much as we had desired peace, it was denied us and not of our own choice. The flag under which we serve would have been dishonored had we withheld our hand.

But that is only part of the story. We know now as clearly as we knew before we were ourselves engaged that we are not the enemies of the German people and that they are not our enemies. They did not originate or desire this hideous war or wish that we should be drawn into it; and we are vaguely conscious that we are fighting their cause, as they will some day see it, as well as our own. They are themselves in the grip of the same sinister power that has now at last stretched its ugly talons out and drawn blood from us. The whole world is in the grip of that power and is trying out the great battle which shall determine whether it is to be brought under its mastery or fling

They Were Sure of Conquest

THE war was begun by the military masters of Germany, who proved to be also the masters of Austria-Hungary. These men who have never regarded nations as peoples, men, women and children of like blood and frame as themselves, for whom governments existed and in whom governments had their life. They have regarded them merely as serviceable organizations which they could by force or intrigue bend or corrupt to their own purpose. They have regarded the smaller states, in particular, and the peoples who could be overwhelmed by force, as their natural tools and instruments of domination. Their purpose has long been avowed. The statesmen of other nations, to whom that purpose was incredible, paid little attention; regarded what German professors expounded in their classrooms and German writers set forth to the world as the goal of German policy as rather the dream of minds detached from practical affairs, as private conceptions of German destiny, than as the actual plans of responsible rulers; but the rulers of Germany themselves knew all the while what concrete plans, what well-advanced intrigues lay back of what the professors and the writers were saying, and were glad to go forward unmolested, filling the thrones of Balkan States with German princes, putting German officers at the service of Turkey to drill her armies and make interest with her Government, developing plans of sedition and rebellion in India and Egypt, setting their fires in Persia. The demands made by Austria upon Servia were a n compassed Europe and Asia fro those plans might not arouse them whether they did or not, for the final issue of arms.

The Potsdam Plan

THEIR plan was to throw a political control across beyond the Mediterranean into Hungary was to be as much t Bulgaria or Turkey or the pond Hungary, indeed, was to beco Empire, absorbed and domina fluences that had originally ce selves. Fellow Citizens-We meet to celebrate Flag Day because this flag which we honor and under which we serve is the emblem of our unity, our power, our thought and purpose as a nation. It has no other character than that which we give it from generation to generation. The choices are ours. It floats in majestic silence above the hosts that execute those choices, whether in peace or in war. And yet, though silent, it speaks to us-speaks to us of the past, of the men and women who went before us and of the records they wrote upon it. We celebrate the day of its birth; and from its birth until now it has witnessed a great history, has floated on high the symbol of great events, of a great plan of life worked out by a great people. We are about to carry it into battle, to lift it where it will draw the fire of our enemies. We are about to bid thousands, hundreds of thousands, it may be milions, of our men, the young, the strong, the capable men of the nation, to go forth and die beneath it on fields of blood far away-for what? For some unaccustomed thing? For something for which it has never sought the fire before? American armies were never before sent across the seas. Why are they sent now? For some new purpose, for which this great flag has never been carried before, or for some old, familiar, heroic purpose for which it has seen men, its own men, die on every battlefield upon which Americans have borne arms since the Revolution?

Why America Goes to War

THESE are questions which must be answered. We are Americans. We in our turn serve America, and can serve her with no private purpose. We must use her flag as she has always used it. We are accountable at the bar of history and must plead in utter frankness for what purpose it is we seek to

It is plain enough how we were forced into the war. The extraordinary insults and aggressions of the Imperial German Government left us no self-respecting choice but to take up arms in defense of our rights as a free people and of our honor as a sovereign Government. The military masters of Germany denied us the right to be neutral. They filled our unsuspecting communities with vicious spies and conspirators and sought to corrupt the opinion of our people in their own behalf. When they found that they could not do that, their agents diligently spread

RATION OF INDEPENDENCE

HE President's Flag Day speech made a projound impression in Europe. It was printed in full with large headings in practically all of the great papers of the old world including the press of the Teutonic Bund.

Arthur J. Balfour, England's Foreign Secretary, characterized the address as one of the greatest state papers in history.

"In it," he said, "you will find justification of this great alliance among all actions who love liberty, against the monstrous tyranny and coercion with which the civilized world is threatened if we submit to an inconclusive and ineffective peace."

The Paris Matin, voicing the sentiment of the people of France, said of the address:

"The discourse is certainly the most beautiful, the clearest and most instructive that he (President Wilson) has pronounced since the beginning of the war. Nothing is more fortifying to us French, who first put our hand to the task, than to see rising in the world's greatest democracy, at the call of its respected chief, that implacable resolution based on a clear vision of the future of Europe: The situation has never been so clearly stated as on Flag Day in Washington."

Considering the source, the comment of German papers was probably the 'ost flattering. "Answer of Hypocrite Wilson," "Wilson in Delirium," and "Wilson Without a Mask" were some of the headings in the Berlin newspapers. Had the address pleased Berlin it would have been a failure from the standpoint of justice and freedom.

In Russia, the country whose attitude is causing the entente the greatest concern, the address was commented on favorably by the organs of the most prominent parties.

"The House of Cards"

THE military masters under whom Germany is bleeding see very clearly to what point Fate has brought them. If they fall back or are forced back an inch, their power both abroad and at home will fall to pieces like a house of cards. It is their power at home they are thinking about now more than their power abroad. It is that power which is trembling under their very feet and deep fear has entered their hearts. They have but one chance to perpetuate their military power or even their controlling political influnce. If they can secure peace now with the immense advantages still in their hands which they have up to this point apparently gained, they will have justified themselves before the German people, they will have gained by force what they premised to gain by it-an immense expanison of German power, an immense enlargement of German industrial and commercial opportunities. Their prestige will be secure, and with their prestige their political power. If they fail, their people will thrust them aside; a Government accountable to the people will be set up in Germany as it has been in England, in the United States, in France, and in all the great countries of the modern time except Germany. If they succeed they are safe and Germany and the world are undone; if they fail Germany is saved and the world will be at peace. If they succeed, America will fall within the menace. We and all the rest of the world must remain armed, as they will remain, and must make ready for the next step in their aggression; if they fail the world may unite for

4 The Intrigue for Peace

Do you not now understand the new intrigue, the intrigue for peace, and why the masters of Germany do not hesitate to use any agency that promises to effect their purpose, the deceit of the nations? Their present particular aim is to deceive all those who throughout the world stand for the rights of peoples and self-government of nations; for they see what immense strength the forces of justice and of liberalism are gathering out of this war. They are employing liberals in their enterprise. They are using men in Germany and without, as, their spokesmen whom they have hitherto despised and oppressed, using them for their own destruction-Socialists, the leaders of labor, the thinkers they have hitherto sought to silence. Let them once succeed and these men, now their tools, will be ground to powder beneath the weight of the great military empire they will have set up; the revolutionists of Russia will be cut off from all succor or co-operation in Western Europe and a counter revolution fostered and supported; Germany herself will lose her chance of freedom; and all Europe will arm for the next, the final struggle.

Undermining Influences Here

THE sinister intrigue is being no less actively conducted in this country than in Russia and in every country in Curope to which the agents and dupes of the Imperial German Government can get access. That Government has many spokesmen here, in places high and low. They have learned discretion: They keep within the law. It is opinion they utter now, not sedition. They proclaim the liberal purposes of their masters; declare this a foreign war which can touch America with no danger to either her lands or her institutions; set England at the center of the stage and talk of her ambition to assert economic dominion throughout the world; appeal to our ancient traditions of isolation in the politics of the nations; and seek to undermine the Government with false professions of loyalty to its principles.

This Is a People's War

B UT they will make no headway. The false betray themselves in every accent. It is only friends and partisans of the German Government whom we have already identified who utter these thinly disguised disloyalties. The facts are patent to all the world, and nowhere are they more plainly seen than in the United States, where we are accustomed to deal with facts and not with sophistries and the great fact that stands out above all the rest is that this is a people's war, a war for freedom and justice and self-government amongst all the nations of the world, a war to make the world safe for the peoples who live upon it and have made it their own, the German people themselves, included; and that with us rests the choice to break through all these hypocrisies and patent cheats and masks of brue force and help set the world free, or else stand aside and let it be dominated a long age through by sheer weight of arms and arbitrary choices of self-constituted masters, by the nation which can maintain the biggest armies and the most irresistible armaments-a power to which the world has afforded no parallel and in the face of which political freedom must wither and perish.

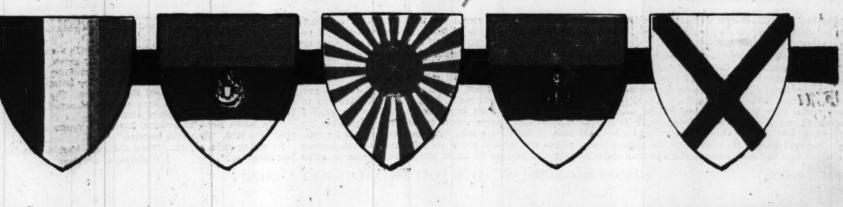

For us there is but one choice. We have made it. Woe be to the man or group of men that seeks to stand in our way in this day of high resolution when every principle we hold dearest is to be vindicated and made secure for the salvation of the nations. We are ready to plead at the bar of history, and our flag shall wear a new luster. Once more we shall make good with our lives and fortunes the great faith to which we were born, and a new glory shall shine in the face of our people.

A glance at the map on this page will clearly show the strategic position occupied by the rock. The mammoth 17-inch guns on the island have prevented the approach of allied warships to the German coast. Submarine flotillas operating from behind Heligoland have had a base of supplies and a safe refuge in time of need. It has been generally assumed that all orders to submarine commanders from the German admiralty have been dispatched from Heligoland.

Several months ago Winston Churchill suggested in the House of Commons that the cure for the submarine menace was "to dig the rats plan would have demanded

Thus, an air raid on the rock from either point would necessitate a round trip of 550 miles, an uncommonly long Journey, but one that has been successfully made by a score or more of aviators.

It has been figured that 100 aeroplanes, carrying several tons of high explosives, could practically render the Island defenseless against a naval attack timed to follow immediately after the air The rock formation is such that a series of broadsides from big naval guns would cause large sections of the island to crumble into dust, thus loosening the batteries and destroying their usefulness.

Character Sketches by W. E. HILL

The lady who expects to land in the editorial sanctum by bombarding with all her charms the boy at the outer gate.

"Jack, boy," she broke in, with a half sob, "go . . . . go, and fight . . . for your country . . . and for me!" Lady manuscript reader who would like to draft all the authors of war stories.

The lady who tried to sell a humorous anecdote finds herself going down in the elevator with the editor, whom she could not see because he was out of town.

The office assistant, who has to do all the disagreeable work, softens the blow with: "Liked your pictures so much—but we have several of the same type on hand, etc."

"Now, this one of the exploding peanut stand I like immensely—it has feeling and all that—but I'm afraid to chance it. You see, it might offend our Italian readers and we have to be careful of that sort of thing. Now, if it were a cabaret scene I'd take it."

ST. LOUIS, MO.

Powder? No Cake? No transparent flakes!

Lux is not a cake of soap, not a chipped soap, not a soap powder, but pure transparent flakes.

Even in looks it is not like anything you have ever seen.

Why soap for fine laundering should be in flakes

Soap should never be rubbed directly on fine fabrics, for the rubbing weakens and will eventually destroy the fabric.

In flake form, Lux melts the moment you throw it into hot water, and makes an instant lather which dissolves dirt without rubbing. Lux is so com-pletely soluble that not the slightest trace of soap is left in the garment to yellow it. Lux won't injure anything that water alone won't injure.

In flake form, Lux can be kept pure, concentrated soap. In this form there is no need for any air, any moisture, or any kind of "filler" which has no cleansing value. Lux needs only to be used in small quantities owing to its absolute purity and wonderful richness in lather.

Nothing like it ever before been made

The process by which Lux is made is used only for Lux—the very machinery which "flakes" the soap is patented and controlled by the manufacturers of
